'American people which would require our armies to abandon Cuba, Porto Rico or the Phil-"ippines." Naturally the soundest and most inabout the Administration's foreign and military seem bent on giving a conspicuous place in next year's platform. These two enterprising managers may make their purpose good, but if they shallow and stupid falsehood, they gambled for the Presidency three years ago.

WHAT'S IN A NAME!

In his inconclusive reply to Controller Coler's inquiries Mr. Silas B. Dutcher, president of the Ramapo Water Company, said:

You ask upon what the offer of the Ramapo Water Company to furnish water to the city of New-York is based. The offer is based upon the demand of more than twelve hundred property owners and taxpayers of this city—merchants. owners and faxpayers of this city—merchants, banks, bankers, real estate men, hotel keepers, insurance men and others, representing hun-dreds of millions of dollars of property value— whose signatures were attached to the petition embedied in the memorial of the Board of Fire Underwriters presented to the Board of Public Improvements on June 14, 1898.

We did not think when it first appeared that this particular part of Mr. Dutcher's letter to the Controller was exactly responsive to any question which the latter had asked, but it did seem to show that a large number of intelligent persons were, or had been, favorable to the Ramapo enterprise, and to that extent it may fairly have been considered useful to the company. Such value, however, as it possessed was short lived, for ever since its publication the intelligent citizens whose approval was thus cited have been rising to explain that they never gave their approval to the project which Tammany leaders have been resolved to put through. More fighting between the Government forces and revolutionists in San Domingo. — Progressor John R. Soley finished his argument for Venezuela before the Boundary Arbitration Tribunal in Parls. — The American jockeys Sloan, Reiff and Martin won-races at the Derby September meeting in England.

It must be acknowledged, however, that some of the intelligent eftizens who have been involved in the controversy now find themselves in a rather awkward situation, being obliged to confess that they gave their names to an appeal without stopping to ascertain what it was about. There is nothing criminal in that, to be sure, but it does not comport very well with the reputation which such men wish to maintain. There have been innumerable illustrations of the ease with which highly respectable signatures can be obtained for any purpose, but this experience, though less serious than some and less amusing than others, is worthy of notice. Undoubtedly many of the names signed to the petition which Mr. Dutcher cited with so much satisfaction could have been quite as easily obtained in support of a demand that Mr. Dutcher should be drawn and quartered in front of the City Hall. Nobody wants to have the president of the Ramapo company figure as the centre of such a speciacle, but it is not improbable that ten thousand mild and gentle residents of New-York could be persuaded without much difficulty to sign a petition calling for his extermination in that horrifying manner.

If the mortification to which some of our intelligent citizens have been subjected teaches them and others to be more careful of their signatures, the incident will have served one useful
